Navigating Numbers Along Tripura's Waterways

In the northeastern beauty of India lies Tripura, a state graced by a web of rivers. Like lifelines, they wind through lush landscapes, shaping the land and nurturing life.

- Find the rivers flowing in Tripura, along with their approximate lengths (in kilometers), and display them in a tabular form.
- Locate the rivers of Tripura on the state map. Label each river with its name and indicate its respective length.
- Answer the questions given below based on the researched data:
 - 1) Which river is the longest, and which one is the shortest?
 - 2) If you add the lengths of the Manu, Khowai, and Haora Rivers together, what is the total length?
 - 3) Compare the length of the Khowai River to the combined lengths of the Gumti and Muhuri Rivers. Which one is longer?
 - 4) If the lengths of the Muhuri and Khowai Rivers are added together, what is the sum?
 - 5) If the Gumti River is approximately 350 kilometers long and the Manu River is approximately 96 kilometers long, what is the difference in length between the two rivers?
 - 6) Order the rivers in descending order based on their lengths.
 - 7) Compare the length of the Haora River to half of the length of the Khowai River. Which one is longer?
